

Thirty years of teaching in classrooms extend to an online format for Connie Anderson. Connie continues her career and love of teaching young children as the creator of a digital one-room schoolhouse. She provides educational, support services for young children, about ages 5-9. Even though she began her career as a high school English teacher, eventually she found her talents, skills, and interests were best suited for the primary grades. Her love of music, writing and performing have influenced her decisions to add a reading certification, an elementary certificate, a master's degree, and a web design certificate to her secondary certificate. When work is completed, and that includes her volunteer work as a musician and climate reality leader in her community; it isn't unusual to find Connie enjoying the beauty and splendor of the Rocky Mountains and spending quality time with her husband, family and close friends.

Connie has produced many instructional, musical tools that help children experience the beauty, the humor, syntax, sense and structural patterns of our English language. "Not Your Grandma's Phonics" musical poems for kids are available for download in digital format at CD Baby. <https://www.cdbaby.com/cd/connieanderson2>; or adults can click on a link at the bottom of the page at <http://www.ourspace4kids.com/learn.html>.

In addition to offering children's instructional music and managing her digital one-room schoolhouse, she spends a great amount of time practicing all types of music. She and her husband Bruce play percussion in the Summit Concert Band; once a year as Rusty Fairmont, they play for the Copper Mountain Mountain Safety Patrol party. Connie is available as a vocalist/musician for weddings in Summit County.
